THOUGHT and COMMENT OLD OR NEW

Bang!
Just like that, Iowa voters delivered an open hander to the cheek of the Old Guard and the resounding echo is being heard all over the nation. Smith V. Brookhart, republican candidate for the United States Senate in the primary election there has snowed under Senator A. B. Cummins who has been in the senate for the past eighteen years.

Old Guard leaders were held post mortems in Washington yesterday and it is rumored that these post mortems will continue until some remedy is found for the wave which seems to be sweeping over the entire nation to put the old timers out of office.

"Clean house" seems to be the shout of national politics, and the resounding echo although somewhat weak until a few weeks ago seems to have found an ear drum for vibration in Contra Costa County. Whether or not it will cause enough of a sensation to reach the brain for action remains to be seen.

The general tendency at the present time seems to be—no matter who runs but let us clean out the old gang and see if we can't obtain a better and more economical government.

This may be another case of the other side of the stream always looking better to the fisherman, but as one old bromide reminded us yesterday—when you have to choose between two evils choose the lesser.

Only a few candidates have come out with their announcements so far for this county. More have been predicted and are momentarily expected. That the "Old Gang" is not going to have a clinch of the campaign this time seems apparent on every hand.

Political offices never were intended to create a life's employment for any one person or group. The one man in office for many terms harks back to the old days when Kings had the say and their favorites stayed in office indefinitely. It looks on the surface at the present time however as though the good old days of Democracy may come sneaking back in this county and that the offices will change hands—at least some of them.

It is true that when a man is well equipped mentally to handle a certain position he should above all other handle that post—BUT—how many of the county officers today and state or national for that matter either who have been in term and after term knew anything about their office when they first secured it? The chances are in political posts that old timers are inclined to get slightly rusty—and a new broom sweeps clean. Something else seems to be desired from a public office holder other than to know the exact manner in which to fill out and file his expense report and the other forms pertaining to the office. No, experience in the case of a county post does not mean much in this day and age.

CARPENTERS IN NEW OUTBREAK ACROSS THE BAY

Lull of Three Days in Rioting Is Broken With Arrest of Two Men at Bank Building

After three days of comparative lull, the storm in the strike situation in San Francisco broke out anew yesterday and two more strike sympathizers were arrested following a riot call.

At the construction of the new building for the Mercantile Trust company at Twenty-second and Mission streets yesterday, a gang of twelve men surrounded the building and demanded that the non-union workmen employed on the building stop work and talk concerning joining the union. The workmen refused to do. One of them slipped away during the course of the arguments and phoned the police.

Police arriving in answer to the riot call dispersed the gang, arresting two men.

A jury in Police Judge Life Jack's court, hearing the first jury trial of a strike case brought in a verdict of not guilty for two defendants charged with violating the anti-picketing law and disturbing the peace.

Superior Judge J. J. Trabucco in a test case regarding jurisdiction held that charges of rioting arising from strike disturbances must first be tried in the lower courts. The decision was given in a case of writ of habeas corpus obtained by Attorney Carol Bucher of the Carpenters' union for George Friedman held by Police Judge Jacks on a charge of rioting. As a result of the decision two other men held on similar charges will be dismissed, according to Assistant District Attorney William Hagarty.

It is said that Attorney James P. Brennan, counsel for the Industrial association will attempt to carry the three cases to the Superior Court on the charge of conspiracy. Attorney Brennan has asked for warrants against forty-three alleged rioters arrested in one disturbance and the warrants charge conspiracy.

He was captured in Bisbee, Arizona, in April and while officers were taking him to Phoenix they car overturned. Workman feigned injury and was taken to a hospital from which he fled. NEW DRY BILL IS SIDETRACKED

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, June 8.—All hope of the drys for new legislation "with teeth in it" faded here tonight when the Republican steering committee of the Senate definitely decided to side track the Goff bill.

The Goff bill, backed by the Treasury Department and by dry organizations, would permit dry sleuths to raid dwellings in which the illicit manufacture of liquor was suspected.

The dry bills to reorganize the prohibition unit into a separate department and to place all dry sleuths under civil service were placed by the steering committee upon the preferred list of legislation.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—An airplane served as a joint fire-alarm and fire-wagon for Lieutenant H. A. Barton of the army air service near Wright Field, Ohio, he reported to the War Department today.

Soaring about fifteen miles from the field, Barton observed a burning farmhouse. He brought his plane immediately to earth, landing in a small field nearby, and rushed to give aid.

Only a woman was in the house. The lieutenant removed the furniture and other valuable articles from the burning home, and prevented the fire from spreading to the barn and other buildings.

When no longer needed, the lieutenant mounted his plane and returned to the air field.

PLANS MADE TO FUND LIBERTY LOAN OF NATION

Fourteen Billion Dollar Loan To Be Refunded Under Plan Of Sec. of Treasury Mellon

(By Universal Service)
M. L. RAMSAY
WASHINGTON, June 8.—In one of the greatest financial undertakings in the history of the world, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is preparing to refund the more than $14,000,000,000 Liberty loan floated during the war. It was loaned today.

Harring possible unfavorable developments in the money market, high officials estimate that refunding these loans at lower interest rates will save the government and the taxpayers about $100,000,000 a year in interest payments.

President Coolidge has been made aware of at least part of this plan. He told callers today that Mellon already has made plans to retire the $3,000,000,000 Liberty bonds and the new issues to replace them in 1928. Of that amount, $6,000,000,000 are Liberty loans.

It is planned to replace these with new securities bearing much lower interest, a spokesman for the President announced.

Many of the outstanding Liberty loans cost the government 4 and one-quarter per cent. President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon estimate that the new issues to replace the outstanding loans can be financed for three and three-quarter per cent at the most, which was the rate paid on the treasury's last issue three months ago. It is quite possible, however, that the first of these new issues may be issued at three and one-half per cent.

Nor will the treasury stop with $3,000,000,000 refunding announced. It is understood that it looks forward to adopting the same course with the first and fourth Liberty loans, which are subject to retirement in 1928 and 1929. High officials stated. They total more than $8,000,000,000.

The principal feature of the plan is to retire next year's issue of the third Liberty loans. They amount to slightly more than $1,000,000,000. The outstanding issue of the fourth Liberty loans, issued in 1923 and aggregated about $1,000,000,000, fall due this year. It is indicated that these will be included in the refunding plan.

Mellon's project is linked closely with his younger brother's plan to issue $1,000,000,000 in new bonds, which will be made in the next quarter without borrowing a single penny.

Adopting this course—paying off $333,000,000 of maturing obligations—Mellon's plan means an other deep cut will be made in the public debt. The debt reduction this fiscal year will be about $900,000,000, since a large reduction already has been made.

That course will bring the debt substantially under $200,000,000 for the first time since the war.

This will so strengthen the position of the treasury that the refunding of the Liberty loans can be made on most favorable terms.

The White House spokesman made it plain, however, that none of these financial moves will swerve the administration from its determined stand against another tax cut at the December session.

Tremendous tax receipts now pouring in are paid on the incomes of 1925, he pointed out. What the government's revenues will be in the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, was declared uncertain. Conditions abroad, the weather, or other factors might alter the situation radically, it was said.

Furthermore, Mellon is understood to have told the President that a strong drive of back taxes, added an unexpected $100,000,000 to the treasury's revenues. Customs collections also amounted to $20,000,000 above estimate, indicating a heavy increase in imports. If the added imports were manufactured goods, it was pointed out, this would less activity for American industries, and consequently smaller income tax receipts next year.

After studying the tide and current conditions at the spot where the evangelist is believed to have been drowned May 18, marine experts declared there was little possibility of the body ever being recovered.

Sunday, June 20, was today announced as special memorial day for Mrs. McPherson when an all-day service will be held at Angelus Temple.

ASK CLOSING OF MARTINEZ HALL

MARTINEZ, June 8.—Two organizations have placed the I. D. E. S. hall here under fire, alleging that the hall is a "fire-trap" and declaring that the public dances given there are "vulgar".

The Parent Teacher's Association of the Alhambra high school filed protests with the board of trustees and as a result of these protests the board has ordered fire escapes constructed immediately under penalty of refusing permits for dances or other functions and issued an order directing all dance applications of individuals be referred to the board for action.

Calling attention that there are frequently large gatherings at the hall, which is occasionally used by students, the P. T. A. group pointed out in a letter to the board that the hall has but one exit and the windows are barred and screened. The letter asks that the hall be either closed or the owners be forced to install proper exits.

Residents in the vicinity of the hall also filed protests declaring that the dances staged by individuals are accompanied by vulgar talk, that there is drinking in automobiles and that the adjacent churchyards there are in "indescible conditions."

NEW YORK CAFE OWNERS FIGHT CURFEW LAW

Police Night Closing of All Night Clubs at 2 a. m.; Owners Protesting

(By Universal Service)
NEW YORK, June 8.—Broadway workers frantically today for an amendment to the curfew order which closes all night clubs at 2 a. m.

Dozens of cabarets and nightclubs rolled out of bed before 3 o'clock this afternoon to attend a meeting to see what can be done about the police order which shut up most of their places this morning.

Then they appointed a committee to call on Mayor Walker and ask him to change the curfew hour to 3 a. m. with the provision that all patrons be allowed to finish their meals after that time.

They also decided to form a protective association so they can work together in the emergency and even talked about hiring a Judge Landis or Will Hays to give their profession a higher standing. But the committee couldn't find Mayor Walker at his office or his home and they didn't get a bit of nourishment from Police Commissioner McLaughlin who said:

"We want to observe the effect of the closing order for about a week. At that time it is possible a compromise may be effected."

"We have found that places run in a respectable manner have no objection to closing at 2 o'clock. Our only reason for invoking the curfew order is to insure adequate protection for decent people."

IOWA ELECTION STIRS LEADERS

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, June 8.—A real revolt in the corn belt against the policies of the Coolidge administration that bodes ill for the Republican party in November and a far reaching effect on the Presidential situation in 1928.

That statement represents the consensus of opinion of leaders of all shades of political thought in Washington tonight regarding the smashing victory of former Senator Smith Brookhart, outcast, Republican insurgent, in the Iowa senatorial primaries.

While the White House spokesman refrained from any comment on the situation there was no effort to disguise the fact that the defeat of Senator Albert Cummins, a stalwart administration support, came as a disappointing blow to the President.

THE CARE OF CHILDREN

Somebody is always discovering the contrast between the excellent care we take of our livestock and the neglect to which our children are subjected. Man's inhumanity to children compared with his tenderness toward hogs makes countless welfare workers mourn.

And well it may. When we think of all the thousands of little pigs tucked in between the freshly ironed sheets every night by fond farmers while little children are left to root out a soft spot in the earth to lie upon, it almost makes us weep too. And the mothers—you can fairly see them standing over the hot stove preparing savory ham and eggs, hot cakes, pies and doughnuts for the little calves and colts, while their own offspring are turned out to gnaw the green from the surface of a pasture. How they can do it passes comprehension, but they must. You can prove it by any uplifter who makes a speciality of children.

What the situation calls for undoubtedly is a corps of government inspectors who will go about telling people how to care for their young-ones. Then probably we shall reach the millennium where it will be the hogs and cattle who are subjected to the torture of reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic and geography, while the little children are stuffed with corn and hustled off to the packing-houses when they are ripe and the market is right. And when our horse breaks his leg we'll send him to a hospital, but if the same thing happens to the baby we'll shoot the darling.—Omaha World-Herald.

PENNSYLVANIA

It is a time for great discussion of Pennsylvania, which has just turned out a republican senator and nominated a congressman for his place. Republican administration adherents are inclined to believe that the rising tide of wet sentiment in this avowedly moist state, was responsible for the engulfing of Senator Pepper.

Advocates and opponents of the League of Nations have a very different idea. They read in the defeat of Pepper somewhat the same lesson they pretend to see in the defeat of McKinley in the Illinois republican primary. Enemies of the World Court describe the result as a repudiation of the administration's support of the court ratification. Perhaps there was some such factor, but it is hard to believe that it was a determining one.

Senator Pepper, while supporting the World Court, came forth with a plan for American entry. But after he had quite furiously advocated his scheme, he dropped it to vote with the administration leaders in the senate for the Coolidge design.

MORAL TURPITUDE

A moral turpitude clause appears in the new Mexican immigration regulations; and no woman under twenty-five years of age may enter Mexico unless accompanied by parents or guardian. A natural inference is that after their twenty-fifth birthday women know the difference between right and wrong and can take care of themselves.

There's always a bright side. Eventually the franc will have nowhere to go but up.—Newark Ledger.

Some Pages from American History

By VICTOR MORGAN

THE TEMPERANCE CAUSE

In the early days of our history the use of liquor was almost universal, and one of the great evils of the times was drunkenness. No well-to-do farmer thought he could gather in his grain without a jug of whiskey to refresh him and his men. No building was attempted without plenty of spirits to help get the timbers into place. No gentleman called on another without being asked to partake of social refreshment.

The "American Society for the Promotion of Temperance" was formed in Boston in 1826. The "Washington Temperance Society" was founded in Baltimore a few years later by six men who knew the evils of the vice of intemperance from their own sad personal experience. The latter movement is said to have restored a hundred and fifty thousand drunkards to the manhood they had lost through drink.

The first temperance societies did not insist on total abstinence from all alcoholic drink, but only from the use of distilled spirits such as whiskey, brandy, etc. Later—like Washington—they required a pledge of "total abstinence from all that can intoxicate." They retained the name of temperance societies, although, strictly speaking, they had now become total abstinence societies. The state of Maine in 1851 enacted a prohibitory law forbidding the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors as beverages.

BROKEN HEARTS of HOLLYWOOD

BY EDWARD CLARK

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" with Louise Oresser is a Warner picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
A beautiful, attractive, beautiful girl, Betsy, is a Hollywood actress. She is a member of the "Broken Hearts of Hollywood" club. She is a member of the "Broken Hearts of Hollywood" club. She is a member of the "Broken Hearts of Hollywood" club.

She heard Hal, and turned an appealing look at him.

"Oh, Hal! I just—can't—," she said, and turned away.

Hal, too, was mortified. His cheeks flamed for Betsy's sake. "There must be some mistake," he said, comfortingly. "Maybe she doesn't know who you are."

Both looked pleadingly at the wardrobe woman, whose obviously nice beautiful face had been subjected by trouble to that process which sweetens as it furrows, when he heart is good. She had been quietly appraising Betsy in particular, and Hal in passing, and now smiled.

"Green at the game, aren't you, Betsy?" Then, without waiting for the answer, which she knew anyway, she went on, "I've seen many a one blush like you when first drawing an assignment like this, and in two months be willing to wear it anything—or nothing—I hope it won't be that way with you, or somehow you look—different. You remind me of a woman who used to play leads when I did, fifteen years back—"

She was aware of the incredulous

look in their eyes, and laughed:

"Oh, I guess it is hard to believe that I was a star once. But I was. Only I didn't have the right balance—and advice. And Hollywood—got me. That's why I'm always sager to help and advise those new girls. I don't look as though they'll tell me to mind my own business. Say, what was your mother's name?" There was a faraway look in the wardrobe woman's faded eyes, the light of remote recollection struggling to grasp an elusive certainty.

"My name is Betsy Ann Terwilliger. I never heard my mother's maiden name. She died when I was a baby. Father died some years ago."

"Oh, I'm sorry, Terwilliger!" She tried and tried, but the memory would not resolve out of the shaded past. So she leaned forward across the counter and patted Betsy's cheek with fingers that, despite years of hard work, were still slender and velvety.

"Don't you worry about wearing this bathing suit. You'll be O. K. No one will bother you, if you don't invite them to. You can wear a bathrobe up to the time they start to shoot. You'll find, dearie, that the path to success in this game is blocked by worse things than one-piece bathing suits, but if you have talent and can keep your feet on bottom and your head on top, you will succeed."

She came out from behind her cage and, at the yard door, summoned a girl already in costume: "Betsy, you know the ropes here. Show this child up to Number 28."

Then to Betsy: "You can wait in the dressing room, honey, until you're called."

"And," broke in Hal with a grin, "while you're about it, Miss, will you please point out Number 8 to me?"

The extra girl smiled vivaciously from one to the other, and said, "Sure thing. Let's go."

The wardrobe woman took hold of Betsy's hand and gave it a final pat. "Remember, dearie, if you ever want any advice or help come down here to Mother Jobyns Fredrickson." Then this woman, to whom all the scandals and secrets of Studioland's past were even more familiar than the present, stood in the doorway and stared after Betsy with mystified, marveling eyes. "Great Heavens," she breathed. "Could it be possible? I hope—I hope—it isn't!"

CHAPTER VI.

When the blonde extra girl known as Pearl pointed out to Hal the way to Dressing Room Number 9 he took leave of Betsy, after they had agreed to look one another up at the end of the day's work and journey home together. This was the first time since their meeting at Centipede, in the lovely Valley, that either was to be without the friendly encouragement of the other's presence during the day-time. As they parted, each endeavored to hide misgivings under affected cheerfulness.

"Today is the day a new star will brighten up this old studio, and I don't mean maybe—when you walk out on the scene!" flattered Hal grandiosely.

"I'm afraid—I'll be too awkward and timid," deprecated Betsy, thinking of the flimsy one-piece bathing suit. Then she changed her tone to declare loyalty. "But you'll show them what a good-looking cowboy really is!"

"I'm not so sure," muttered Hal dubiously, looking at the trappings of horsemanship in his hands, seeing I've never ridden a horse in my life!"

"Hey, Valentino and Negri, can this mutual admiration society and get a wiggle on. I agreed to show you to the dressing rooms, not to conduct an all day tour. I gotta get back—pronto—there's getting ready to shoot my bunch."

Betsy apologetically hurried along with Pearl, while Hal strode to and boldly entered the grey door that was numbered with a large white 9. He was quite unprepared for the crowded, animated scene that met his eyes. The long room—lined on three sides and bisected down the center by continuous tables, over which, at regular intervals, small individual mirrors were hung, and before which rough benches were set—was densely populated with a lusty crew of genuine cowboys.

An undersized and perspiring second assistant director stood near the door, bawling out instructions, to which the rough-necks were paying not the slightest heed. There were perhaps two dozen of the punchers, in various stages of undress from B. V. D.'s to full costume—a jostling, sturdy, devil-may-care lot whose ribaldry resounded above the dust of "sun-burn" make-up powder and the smell of grease paint and creams and all the musty litter of the dressing tables.

The coming of Hal, who stood open-mouthed just inside the door, attracted no more attention in that steaming den than another raindrop in a water barrel. Only the overworked assistant director gave him more than a casual glance.

"Who the heck are you?" he demanded wearily.

Hal struggled to remember his dignity and importance as a contest winner, but somehow this little man's eyes had an absurd power of reducing one to insignificance.

"I'm Hal Chutney, and I'm going to be an actor here. Will you kindly direct me to my dressing room?"

He handed his slip to the assistant, who glanced at it and then at Hal as one might at a museum exhibit from the Moon, smiling over so faintly.

"So you're going to be an actor, eh? Well, you dress right here, buddy, and get a move on or you'll be out of luck."

"Here!" gasped Hal, looking in vain for a vacant space before the dressing mirrors. "Why, I thought—I thought—" Some inner voice cautiously whispered in time that he ought to refrain from revealing to this obviously blinking little man that he had expected a private dressing room. But assistant directors have an uncanny flair for reading minds.

"You thought, of course, that you were going to share Mr. Skinner's star dressing room, and have a valet peel off your socks and comb your chaps. Aw, snap out of it, greenhorn, and find a place at one of those tables."

For assistant directors are one of the only class of people that Abraham Lincoln did not catalogue in his famous utterance about "fooling people"; they are the few people whom you can never fool at any time. And this assistant knew the whole story without a word of explanation from Hal—another contest winner sent in by the office. Another dub to crowd out a regular guy. But the assistant was an old stager; his not to lose son why, his but to slave and sigh.

Goaded by the assistant, Hal picked his way over a tangled profusion of legs and duds, and squeezed into a narrow space between two burly citizens, who by way of welcome swore at him for his clumsiness.

Seek Guides for Girl Reserves

Girl Reserves frolic at "Y" camp. Inset: Miss Anna Rice, Executive of Summer School at Berkeley, California.

"THE flapper lives on the moral heritage of her race. She does not add to it." This stern and unflattering opinion of the young girls of today from a New York professor is not borne out by the experience of the leaders of the 192,000 girls of the so-called flapper age in the Girl Reserve Movement.

So many young girls are asking for Girl Reserve clubs to be organized where they live that additional courses have been announced to meet the demand. Girls in cities and towns, large and small, are eager to assume the self-imposed discipline of the Girl Reserve code and to live up to its high ideals at their work and play.

The Pacific Coast course will be held in connection with the Summer School of the University of California at Berkeley. The dates are June 21st to July 31st. It is located on the Pacific Coast to train Western college women who wish to enter the movement as leaders and advisors of young girls.

Miss Gertrude Gogin, of New York, head of the Girl Reserve "family" of 192,000 girls, will go to Berkeley to give a series of lectures as part of the curriculum. Miss Anna Rice, also of New York, will serve as executive of the school. It will be open to all young college women, with adequate qualifications who are interested in Girl Reserves, already in the movement or seeking definite training to qualify them as leaders. A similar Summer course will be given in New York City at the National School of the Y. W. C. A.

Among the Western faculty will be Mrs. Mary Clarke Burnett, M. A. of the Department of Social Work at the Carnegie Institute of Technology; Miss Mildred H. Edgar and Miss Esther May Carter, Girl Reserve Secretaries of San Francisco.

The Girl Reserves take rank as the second largest movement among girls of this country. Members are 12 to 18 years of age. Their activities vary from household arts such as sewing and cooking, through frolics and recreation, to spiritual ideals translated into every day living. Civic responsibilities in their program take many practical forms of community service. Girls of many nationalities the world around are members and translations of their literature and songs are read and sung in many countries. It is the junior organization of the Y. W. C. A.

Prospective students may get information from Miss Anna Rice, Y. W. C. A. School, Union Street at Alton Way, Berkeley Cal.

General Praises U. S. Army Plan

(By Universal Service)
BOSTON, June 8.—President Coolidge's stand for a strong national defense to safeguard the peace and prosperity of the nation, was praised by Major General R. E. Ely, responding to the "toast to the President," before the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Massachusetts tonight.

"President Coolidge advocates the passage of a selective service law, whereby the burden of war will be born equally by all—that material as well as man power may be controlled by the Government in war time," said General Ely.

He quoted the annual message of 1923, in which President Coolidge said: "The army is a guarantee of the security of our citizens at home; the navy is a guarantee of the security of our citizens abroad. Both of these services should be strengthened rather than weakened."

Under President Coolidge, the American people are getting a clean government, pure in motive, effective in action, General Ely declared.

MONTEREY IS SETTING FOR FILM "MY SON"

With 300 foreign looking extras, a star, several supporting players and a dozen truck loads of electrical equipment and cameras, Edwin Carewe went to Monterey, Cal., where he filmed outdoor scenes for his production of "My Son" for First National Pictures, which comes to the California Theatre today for two days.

The Portuguese fishing village erected near Devil's Mill's location for "The Ten Commandments" presented an unusual sight to those who sailed by in ships. Forty houses and twenty shacks lay at odd angles around lazy streets and a rambling pier. It is there that the high lights of "My Son" were photographed.

The entire village was made so that the houses were suitable to be occupied by the members of the company. Nazimova, the star, occupied the mansion, while Jack Pickford, Hobart Bosworth, Ian Keith, Mary Akin, Charles Murray, Constance Bennett and Dot Farley each had a house to themselves.

Two giant tramp steamers were chartered by Mr. Carewe and anchored a few hundred yards from the shore. Besides furnishing real atmosphere, the steamers were used for part of the dramatic action of "My Son," which is an adaptation from the stage play of the same title.

Other features on the same program include "Dog Shy," "Chase Comedy," "The Dawn," a scenic novelty; "International News," and Larry Canelo, at the organ.

President Will be Guarded by Marines

WASHINGTON, June 8.—In the mountain fastness of his summer retreat, President Coolidge will be guarded this year by a company of picked marines.

A decision to send about forty of the "first" fight was made today following another inspection by White House attaches responsible for the President's safety on the Kirkwood estate in the Saranac Lake section of the Adirondacks.

President Coolidge's summer White House will be on an isolated promontory overlooking a lake. It is three miles from the nearest roadway. It is from from the beaten path of summer tourist travel.

But it is in a practically virgin forest, which would provide shelter for any curious or troublesome person who desires to get near to the president, and for that reason, the marines have been hit upon to supplement the personal protection given the President by the Alert Secret Service operatives.

The marines probably will camp upon the thirty-five acre estate. They will guard all possible entrances to the summer abode of the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Chief Sheet Lightning and Princess Wahletka Plan Nationwide Organization of Indian Tribes

This photograph was taken while the chief and princess were in New York City with other members of the Aboriginal Council of New York. They are trying to organize an association embracing every Indian tribe in North America. They are also trying to have all their people observe the second Saturday of May each year as "Indian Day."

Girls of Russia Not Permitted to Do Own Thinking

In America, home of the free and untrammelled, a spirited girl may hold any legitimate conviction without fear of persecution but in Russia—scene of "Siberia," Fox Film's version of Bartley Campbell's dramatic play—the girl who dared express herself upon questions of the hour was apt to be subjected to the most unspeakable treatment.

Alma Rubens, cast as Sonia Vronsky, is called upon to demonstrate in a most striking manner by Victor Schertzinger, who wielded the megaphone for this Fox epic which begins a two days' run at the Richmond Theatre today.

Miss Rubens, ideally cast as the daughter of an overbearing landowner, is first seen in the house of plenty. Her father, a pompous gourmand, is giving a feast in honor of his daughter's return from the University of Moscow.

Outside the palatial Vronsky home humble peasants, lean-faced and half-starved, are seen peering in at the windows.

Protesting when her father orders his sleek servants to drive the poor from the estate, the daughter first warned and then driven from home by the irate father, when her brother protests he, too, is ordered from the home of plenty.

From this hour, the daughter is persecuted because she has the courage to express her convictions. She has been studying Tolstoy. In her soul she feels that the children of the poor should be educated in order that they may take their rightful places among the thinking peoples of the world.

Then, with the appearance of beastly officers of the Cossack division and the unbecome attentions of a fiery revolutionist, Miss Rubens meets disaster in manifold form and eventually finishes in Siberia.

"Egor," the irrational rebel leader, now sees an opportunity to work his will with "Sonia."

He is thwarted only when the prisoners engineer a daring escape. How "Sonia" escapes in the end, with Edmund Lowe as the rescuer, brings to the screen one of the most dramatic episodes ever filmed.

An all-star cast includes Lou Tellegen, Paul Panzer, Lillian Tashman, Helena d'Algy, Daniel Makarenko, James Marcus, Vadim Urnoff, Tom Santachi, Samuel Blum, Harry Gripp and others.

Boston Schools Closed by Cold

BOSTON, June 8.—Twenty-one public schools in Greater Boston closed today because of the cold and furnaces were going full blast in all office buildings.

With the temperature hovering within a dozen degrees of freezing, the day was the coldest June 7 in the history of the local weather bureau. One year ago today the mercury soared to 95 in the shade.

The weather man holds out some hope for shivering humanity, however, predicting warmer weather tomorrow and still warmer breezes the following day.

TEACH PARENTS WOOD URGES AT LIONS MEET

"The average parent today is no more enlightened than his great-grandfather on the psychology of the child and the method of education," declared State Superintendent of Public Instruction Will C. Wood, in his address before the members of the Richmond Den of Lions yesterday noon.

"To meet this situation," Superintendent Wood declared, "we are about to start an experiment under which fathers and mothers will be taught the fundamental things of child life, enabling them to anticipate the school training which the child will later enter and to cooperate with the school in the child's later education."

Wives of a number of Lions were present to hear Superintendent Wood deliver his address on the plan of which he is a sponsor. He spoke with praise of the modern tendencies of education in California and described them as being "upward, downward, and inward." This state he declared is first in the nation for attendance at high schools, surpassing even the state of New York.

Cyrus Trobber, leader of the Palace Hotel orchestra, of San Francisco, featured the musical program with his violin solos. Trobber was secured by Ward McCracken, chairman of the June committee. Archie Winchell sang several vocal numbers.

The committee in charge of the drive to secure funds for the Lion's quota in the Boy Scout campaign made a report to the chairman, A. C. Faris.

3 AMERICANS ENTER FINALS IN TOURNEY

(By Universal Service)
PARIS, June 8.—One American player entered the semi-finals and two the quarter-finals of the Paris hard court tennis tournament as the result of today's matches.

Miss Mary K. Browne, who has been playing in excellent form since her arrival abroad, surprised the large gallery which gathered for today's matches by the easy manner in which she dispatched Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree, one of the continent's most formidable woman players. The American broke through Mrs. Godfree's defense by winning the first set after a struggle, 7-5 and then rushed through the final set 6-0.

Vincent Richards disposed of the Englishman, Gregory, who has been playing so brilliantly in this tournament, 7-5, 6-2, 6-2, and Howard Kinsey took a straight set victory from A. S. Langul, 6-4, 6-0, 6-3, to enter the final eight in the men's division.

Miss Suzanne Lenglen played her whirlwind game against Miss Mathieu and achieved her usual dynamic results, taking the two sets in love scores. The French girl will oppose Miss Joan Fry of England in the semi-final. Miss Fry, who eliminated Miss Kathleen McKane, has taken a few straggling games from Miss Lenglen in their past meetings. But she can not be considered a dangerous opponent.

Fraulein Bouman, who defeated Miss Contalavos today, 6-2, 7-9, 8-6, will oppose Miss Browne in the semi-finals.

BANKER ADMITS CONNECTION IN POISON PLOT

By HARRY McNAMARA

(By Universal Service)
AURORA, Ill., June 8.—Ulysses G. Young, retired banker of Charleston, W. Va., arrested in connection with the Aurora race track poison plot, has made a complete confession of his part in the scandal in police court here.

Previously, Young had refused to admit any part in the plot. His confession confirmed the belief of Chief of Police Frank McDevitt, of Aurora and General Manager Clifford R. Trimble of Exposition park that he was the victim of a confidence game.

Young, according to his story was persuaded to come to Aurora by Charles Davis of Dayton, O., whom he met while on a business journey to Columbus, O. Young came to Aurora with Davis to buy horses but was inveigled by Earl E. Clark of Columbus, O., a friend of Davis, that some easy money might be made by fixing a race.

The poison sugar plot, which cost the lives of two horses, Apology and Elizabeth K., followed. Green Woods and Sandrae were also victims of the plot but survived.

Young, when arraigned tonight in the Aurora court, waived examination on charges of conspiracy and malicious mischief and was bound over to the grand jury and released on bonds of $5,000. Furnished by his daughter of Huntington, W. Va.

The retired banker said he had settled with the horse-owners for the damage done by the attempt to put over the betting coup. According to his confession he has paid an aggregated amount of $10,750 to make reparation with the owners.

He paid Joe Keller of New Orleans, owner of Elizabeth K., $4,000. E. E. Sterrett of Anthony, La., owner of Apology, $3,500. The Santa stock farm, owners of Green Woods, $1,000, and J. W. Lewis of Maryland owner of Sandrae, $2,250.

Ernest Leaver of Toronto, Canada, a former jockey, Frank "Buster" Marion of Springfield, G. A. former horse owner, and Charles Davis, Dayton, O., are still held in jail here in connection with the plot.
